EVANGELIST'S ATTACK ON DANCING PROVOKES ANGRY RETORT.

Sensation Caused at Hartford City-Lafayette Y. M. C. A. Building Fund -Minor Mishaps in Indiana.

HARTFORD CITY, Ind., Nov. 23 .- A sensational attack in the Times to-night on the Rev. C. Fenwick Reed, a Terre Haute evangelist, who is conducting a revival at Grace Methodist Church here, by A. W. Tracy, editor of the paper, has caused a sensation. Mr. Reed has been waging a warfare on church members who dance and attend theaters. He delivered a sermon on dancing and was criticised by the Times editor. Mr. Reed, in a sermon on Sunday morning, claimed that the Times editor had misquoted him and directed a few shafts of sarcasm toward the editor.

In to-night's issue Editor Tracy gave him the severest arraignment ever given a minister in this city. Editorially he calls him a coward and cur. He says: "He has coming in for a good deal of censure for proven himself a low, coarse, vulgar, ill- letting the contract for asphalting the floor bred man, who considers himself a privi-leged character because he hides behind a extra weight, has caused the spans to sag Christian pulpit. ## WILL VOTE ON THE CHARTER.

Muncie Probably Will Defeat New Governing Instrument.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. MUNCIE, Ind., Nov. 23 .- To-morrow the citizens of Muncle will vote to adopt or reject the special charter which was incorporated in a bill passed by the last Legislature. The vote probably will be light, but not because of a lack of interest in the charter. The fact is, the charter is so long and complicated that the masses of working people have not had time to study it since the day of the election was announced. There is little doubt that the charter will The clause providing for the taxation of

LACK OF TOBACCO SAVED HIM.

Unusual Experience of an Elkhart

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. LAPORTE, Ind., Nov. 23 .- The appetite of James McClurg, of Elkhart, for a chew of tobacco was the means of saving his life. He was dead-heading through from Chicago on the Lake Shore and was riding in a freight caboose early in the morning. When the train reached Laporte he found he was entirely out of tobacco. He hurried to the depot news stand to replenish his supply and a couple of minutes later when he returned to enter the caboose he found that the locomotive of a second section of the freight following the one on which he was riding had plowed its way through the car, completely wrecking it. Had he been in the caboose he probably would have been killed. No one was injured. The east-bound main track was blocked for six hours.

Special Tax to Pay Judgment. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind., Nov. 23 .- A special tax will be imposed on the taxpayers of this city to raise the sum of $4,469.17. which is the amount of a judgment, with interest and costs, which was recently given to Oliver McHenry against the city of Jef-fersonville. When McHenry was a small boy, he fell into an excavation on one of the principal streets in the city and was crippled for life. The property belonged to the Wathan estate and the city has brought suit to recover the amount from the Wathan heirs.

WORK FOR A NEW BUILDING.

Lafayette Business Men Aiding the

Christian Association. Special to the Indianapolis Journal. LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 23.-It now seems very probable that the project to erect a $50,000 Christian Association building in this city will be successfully carried through within a short time. The movement to build an association home has been on foot for two years, but was not pushed until a few months ago. The State convention, which closed here yesterday, imparted an impetus to the project that is encouraging the promoters. To properly under the care of a brain specialist who carry on the work of subscription to the building fund a canvassing committee of fifty citizens has been formed and, beginning to-morrow, will prosecute an active campaign to secure $20,000, which must be added to the $30,000 already on hand be-fore the building can be erected. With what wonderful skill does this musical engineer bring about a stirring climax! The rendering of a certain soft passage last night was so sweet, so poetic, so altogether satisfying that the hearers were soothed as a child is soothed by a lullaby; the following movement was a more stressful one and the enraptured listeners began to bestir themselves, keenly alive to the growing passion in the harmonic strains, and then-fortissimo! And fortissimo with to the level of mere noise. For even when Creatore is wrought up to a pitch of his greatest excitement and when the music from his band sweeps all before it like the raging of a tempest, one is inspired with an

Creatore has critics who like to say that his performances are made up only of sensationalism, but this is very unjust. The man is simply overwhelmed, like many of his race, with deep sentiment when he is engaged in directing a concert, and though his personal display cannot fail to appeal to the American sense of the ridiculous, stil the performances of his band, under his magnetic leadership, are so thoroughly artistic that even the greatest stickler for the conventional must own that such musical treats are very rare in this coun

Last night's programme was one that anybody could enjoy, be he a student of music or a mere layman. It opened with Creatore's own composition, "Royal Pur-ple," a fine march, and this number was immediately followed by Rossini's ever-welcome overture to "William Tell." This is a selection that is usually to be found on the programme of every band condert, but few bands play it so well as does

ARTFUL AND ARTISTIC. The eccentric conductor is artful as well as artistic, for the following number. Mascagni's popular intermezzo from "Cavalleria Rusticana," was given under the leadership of Creatore's understudy while the bandmaster himself took a short rest. Now, Creatore's understudy is an excellent player of brass, but he is an awkward director and the audience was mighty glad to get Creatore himself back again when he returned to the conductor's desk for the next number-Batiste's organ offertory, which the band rendered in splendid style. Wagner's "Die Walkuere" opened the sec-ond part of the concert and was given a grand interpretation, and the other band numbers were Schumann's exquisite 'Traeumerel' and Bizet's "Carmen."
The soloist of the evening, Madame Berili, appeared during the second part of the programme. She disclosed a soprano voice of much better quality in the lower register, her high tones being somewhat harsh. She sang a tremendously difficult solo from Donizetta's "Lucia"-the cavatine, "Regnava nel Silenzio," and won so much applause that she responded with an encore number, another very showy selec-tion. It is not every voice that is heard to advantage with a band accompaniment and Madame Berili's is one that would doubtless sound sweeter with an orchestra. However, she succeeded in giving a great deal of pleasure last night and will sing another Donizetta selection at this evenng's concert-"Convien Partire."

'The Daughter of the Regiment." It was in the final number of the even-ing, the arrangement of "Carmen" music, that Creatore worked up the greatest enthusiasm. He seemed to actually enact the whole grand opera as his musicians played it through. To observe his facial expression was interesting. He was the cigarette girl, the ardent lover and the gallant bull-fighter by turns, and his face mirrored the tragic little story. When the work came to its inspiring conclusion the great hall not only resounded with handclappings but reverberated with cheers. The High School students in the gallery gave the wonderful Italian a rousing football yell of the kind employed in singing the praises of a gridiron hero, and Creatore, bearning with good nature, came back to the platform and had his band play "The Star-sparigled Banner" in the most soul-stirring way imaginable. All of the people present rose to their feet and so the great concert came to a picturesque end.
